Our service

We investigate complaints about the actions and decisions of state government departments and agencies (including state schools and TAFE), local councils and public universities. We work with these agencies to improve decision-making and administrative practices. We are also the oversight agency for the Public Interest Disclosure Act 2010 (PID Act).

Our service is free and independent. We assess complaints within our jurisdiction and make recommendations to rectify unlawful, unreasonable or unjust decisions and improve administrative practice.

The strategic plan provides more information on how we achieve this.

When you contact us, you can expect:

- your call will be answered promptly and professionally between the hours of 9.00am-4.00pm on business days and between 10:30am-4:00pm on the last Thursday of each month.
- staff who are courteous, helpful, professional and sensitive to diverse needs
- your complaint will be handled according to our privacy plan, fairly and in a timely way. Find out how seriously we take privacy.
- if we don't have the power to investigate your complaint, we will advise you as soon as we can about where to take your complaint

- clear explanations about what we can and cannot do, reasons for our decisions and any recommendations we may make
- a preliminary assessment of your complaint within approximately 10 days
- progress updates at least once a month if your complaint is investigated.

Our commitment to accessibility

Our services are available to all people and we are committed to ensuring that we are accessible to everyone.

How you can help us

We are dedicated to offering you a professional and independent service. To help us fulfil our charter commitments, we ask you to:

- exhaust the agency's complaints management system, before contacting us
- be polite, willing to listen and respectful
- inform our staff if you have any special needs, such as an interpreter
- provide a concise summary of your complaint, including documentation to support your complaint (e.g. letters, emails and file notes of telephone conversations)
- tell us about the result you wish to achieve
- respond to our requests within agreed timeframes
- keep us up-to-date if circumstances change or you have new information.

If you are unable to meet these obligations, we may choose to only contact you in writing, or even discontinue the investigation.

Are you unhappy with our decision?

If you are unhappy with our decision, you can ask for a review. Reviews will be conducted by, or under the supervision of, another officer of equal or greater seniority than the officer who originally made the decision. Find out how to have your decision reviewed.

Are you unhappy with our level of service?

If you are unhappy with the way you have been treated or the level of service you received from one of our officers, you may raise the issue with the officer. If you are not comfortable raising it with them, you may raise it with their supervisor. Find out how to complain about our service.

State government departments and agencies, local councils and public universities

We are committed to improving public sector administration. In doing so, we will:

- provide advice and help to develop effective complaint management practices

- provide advice and help to improve the quality of agency practices and procedures
- provide information about how to manage public interest disclosures in accordance with the PID Act and Standards
- treat officers fairly and with respect during interviews and discussions about complaints
- offer advice about how to handle our investigations
- give agencies a reasonable time to respond to our requests for information and comment on complaints that may lead to us making a public report
- make practical recommendations.

How agencies can help our investigations

To help us fulfil our charter commitments, we ask agencies to:

- respond to our requests for information and documents in plain English and in a timely way
- provide clear, accurate and complete information, and respond specifically to questions asked
- state your agency's case logically and fairly
- acknowledge inadequacies and be willing to address them through improved policy or procedures
- give careful consideration to recommendations we make, or requests to take specific actions at the completion of an investigation and implement them wherever possible
- record and analyse complaints information to improve customer service.

Your feedback is important

We value your feedback on our service and how we conduct our business. Your comments provide us with valuable information to improve services. You can contact us in person, by telephone, in writing by fax, email or letter or via our online enquiry and feedback form.
